More tourists are expected to explore Ras Al Khaimah this year, especially after it was named 2021 Gulf Tourism Capital, the emirate's Crown Prince, Sheikh Mohammed bin Saud bin Saqr Al Qasimi, has said.

Ras Al Khaimah bagged the title at the fifth annual meeting of tourism ministers of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) in November.

Sheikh Mohammed said the GCC recognition "will strengthen the emirate's position on the international tourism map and will contribute to attracting larger numbers of tourists and visitors."

"Ras Al Khaimah has witnessed, in recent years, a large-scale transformation, especially in vital facilities and services, infrastructure, education and healthcare sectors," he said.

LIFE QUOTES

FOOLISH THINGS I HAVE DONE

Reflection is an activity that is quite commonly used in coaching. There are several ways to do it, I came across this technique which helps you reflect and also have fun along with it. It helps you take yourself lightly as well. This was a technique described in the book "How To Stop Worrying And Start Living" by Dale Carnegie

Most of us will agree that when we think of ourselves few years back we would always say OMG I was so stupid, so angry and so many things. This never stops. 10 years from now we will say those same things to our present selves. So why not make it fun?!

Make a folder and write all the things till now that you have realized you have made an error in. Be bluntly honest and keep maintaining this over a period of time. When I get out folder and re-read the criticisms I have written of myself, they help me deal with the toughest problem I shall ever face.

Reviewing can take time and not very pleasant at first. Sometimes I am astonished by my own blunders. Of course, as the years have gone by, these blunders have become less frequent. This system of self-analysis over time has done more for me than any other one thing I have ever attempted

You can even do this on a daily basis. Most people will notice these faults which are commonly wasting time, stewing around over trifles, arguing and contradicting people. Eliminating these will gradually help us become better.

So battle these and keep a record of the days when you won. Elbert Hubbard said: "Every man is a damn fool for at least five minutes every day. Wisdom consists in not exceeding that limit."

This is my favorite extract from the

"The small man flies into a rage over the slightest criticism, but the wise man is eager to learn from those who have censured him. Walt Whitman says: "Have you learned lessons only of those who admired you, and were tender with you, and stood aside for you? Have you not learned great lessons from those who rejected you, and braced themselves against you, or disputed the passage with you?"

Instead of waiting for our enemies to criticize us or our work, let's beat them to it. Let's be our own most severe critic.'

Let's find and remedy all our weaknesses before our enemies get a chance to say a word. Try this simple technique and write to me on how you found it!

THE REIGN OF THE E-COMMERCE INDUSTRY

Although 2020 witnessed the closure of several business and industries, the e-commerce industry is here to stay.

The E-commerce industry had quite an impact on the shopping experience of individuals, as the global pandemic forced closure of retail stores worldwide, compelling consumers to shift their shopping preferences online. However, regions across the globe have responded differently to this change thus showcasing contrasting results in ecommerce spending.

A report by Statista.com stated that in 2020 alone, retail e-commerce sales globally were expected to hit $3.9 trillion; Asia Pacific expected to be making $2.45 trillion in online sales. North America was projected to be second in line, likely to generate online retail sales of $749 billion.

Mauro Romano, CEO and Co-Founder of ArabClicks, said, "The global pandemic probably worked in favour of online businesses. With several consumers not willing to compromise on their shopping preferences, this came across as an opportunity for businesses to upscale their ventures and revamp their products and services to closely match the needs of their consumers. We are presently seeing so many businesses thriving online and I believe this trend is here to stay."

In a report highlighting leading e-commerce retailers during the year, Statista.com listed WooCommerce as the leading e-commerce platform accumulating market shares of 28.24 percent. This was followed by Squarespace online stores with shares of 17.69 percent and Shopify making shares worth 10.98 percent.

These online businesses have a strategic way of carrying out their activities that helps them conduct their business effectively and efficiently. These platforms make use of the 'E-commerce software,' that helps manage online activities including handling inventory, changing the visibility of products, calculating taxes and complying to various orders of customers. In 2018 alone this software application market encompassed a value around $5.1 billion and is expected to reach approximately $6.3 billion by 2023. With e-commerce industries doing exceptionally well e-commerce sales worldwide are expected to climb to a whopping $6.5 trillion by 2023.

Overtime, it has been observed that consumers find it increasingly convenient to make their online purchases using their mobile phones, with approximately 64 percent of the traffic coming through these devices. South Korea and China having experienced the highest online penetration with approximately 83 per cent of shoppers making purchases online. Some of the leading e-commerce industries today happen to be Chinese companies such as Taobao.com, Tmall and JD.com. American e-retailer giant Amazon has also attracted customers due to its diverse offerings.

The digital revolution leading all nations has had its impact on the e-commerce industry as well. With consumer behaviours rapidly changing, this platform can change to accommodate the needs of the consumers, thus continuing to be the preferred mode of making purchases.
